

MEET THE FACULTY!

LEADS

DR. ADRIAN WONG

@avkwong

Adrian is a consultant in critical care medicine and anaesthesia in King's College Hospital, London. He has interest in point-of-care ultrasound, clinical governance and medical education. He is an editor on The Bottom Line website and is a member of the ESICM Clinical Training Committee. In his free time, he enjoys building Lego and playing Destiny 2.

DR. DAVID LYNES

@gas_craic

David is an Anaesthetist and Critical Care Doctor in Belfast, Northern Ireland. He is the founder of Propofology.com which publishes resources in anaesthesia, critical care and pain medicine as well as running video courses in anaesthesia and critical care on Vimeo and YouTube that are used around the world. He is on faculty for ESICM and International Fluid Academy as well as being an honorary clinical tutor for Queens University.

MR. AIDAN BARON

@alittlemedic

Aidan is a passionate Paramedic researcher and educator from Sydney Australia. He is currently undertaking a visiting year as a researcher in the Emergency Cardiovascular and Critical Care Research Group at St George and Kingston University London, and holds appointments as a lecturer in paramedicine in Australia and the United Kingdom. He specialises in POCUS and patient advocacy.

DR. SEGUN OLUSANYA

@iceman_ex

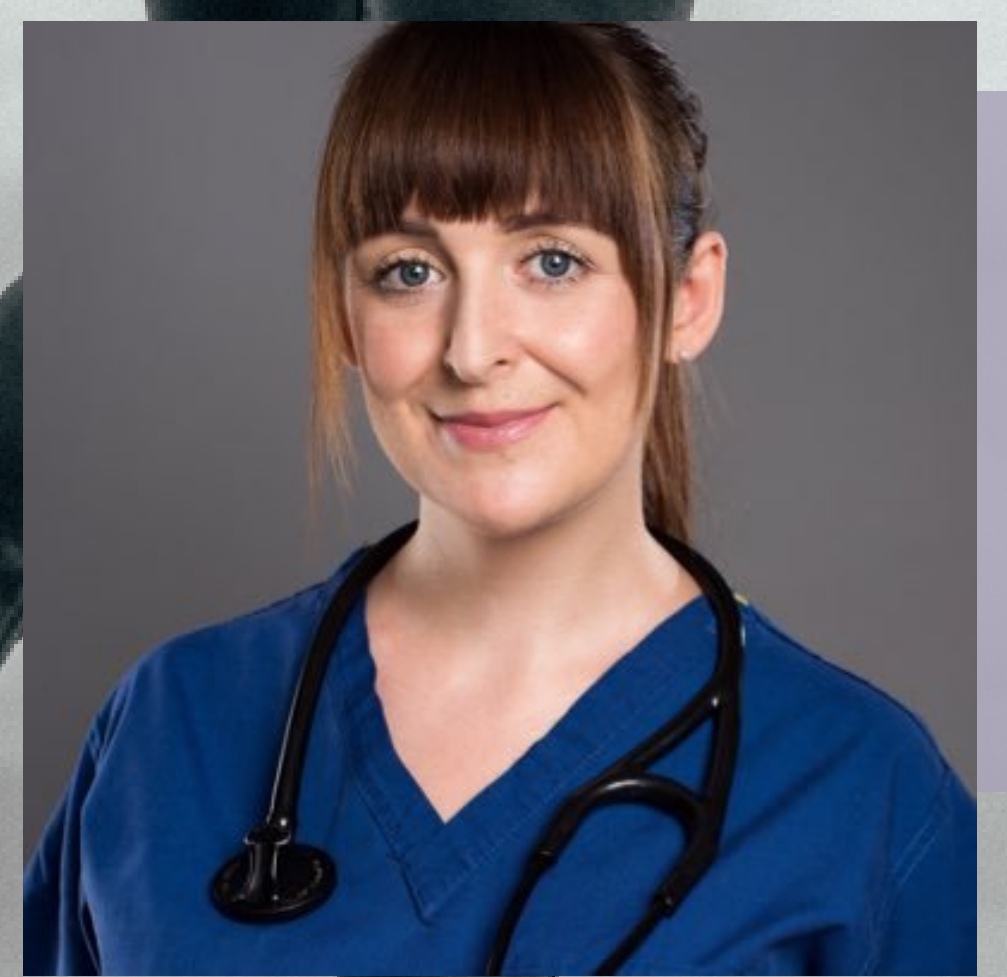

Segun is a Specialty Trainee in Intensive Care Medicine in London, UK. He has a long standing interest in Social Media as a tool for medical education, and is fortunate enough to contribute to the Journal of the Intensive Care Society, the Intensive Care Network, Life in the Fast Lane, and The Bottom Line. In between clinical work, critical care ultrasound, and social media, he likes to help his wife run MonAnnie- a cake and confectionery business. He does this mainly by making the leftovers "disappear".

CCN-CCP MARTA VELIA ANTONINI

@FOAMecmo

Velia Antonini, passionate about extracorporeal life support has completed training as ECMO specialist, Cardiovascular Perfusionist and Cardiovascular Sonographer, and is actually working as Critical Care Nurse in ICU/organ procurement team in Parma & lecturer at the University of Modena and Reggio Emilia in Italy. She's Social Media Editor for ELSO and in ASAIO Journal Social Media Council and runs an ECLS educational blog on EuroELSO website.

DR. AOIFE ABBEY

@WhistlingDixie4

Aoife Abbey is a specialist trainee in intensive care medicine. She is from Dublin, although trains and works in the West Midlands, UK. Aoife is chair elect of the UK Intensive Care Society's (ICS) trainee committee and is active on the organising committee for both ICS State of the Art and SMACC conferences. She enjoys creating hand drawn infographics of both research papers and talks. Aoife also has an interest in writing and medical humanities; she wrote for two years as the BMA's 'secret doctor'. Her first book 'seven signs of life' will be published in February 2019.

DR. JAMIE STRACHAN

@Strachanjamie

Jamie Strachan is an intensive care medicine and anaesthetic registrar in Oxford, United Kingdom. He has a keen interest in innovation and technology in healthcare and spent 2 years as a technology strategy fellow where he worked on building a new life long learning platform that launched in August this year. He was chair of the UK Intensive Care Society Trainee Committee and he now represents anaesthetists in training as an elected member of the council of the Royal College of Anaesthetists.

SOCIAL MEDIA